Readers,

This quality journal kicks off the second year of The Medical Student Press. Our team now includes over 80 medical students representing over 25 different medical schools. In our very first year, we have had over 60,000 visitors to our website and have extended our projects to include many different novel innovations in medical publishing. This collaborative and inquisitive community enhances medical student expression, research, and archive. Each editor and writer on The MSPress team is committed not only to their studies, but also to the progression of the field of medicine. Our core team members invest their time, creativity, and skills into the production of our varied publishing projects. The enthusiasm that our application season drew was incredibly exciting. I am confident in the future of The MSPress and eager to see how incoming editors will mold our publications.

Warm thanks are also due to all of our registered peer reviewers. Reviewers directly involved with the production of Vol 2, No 1 include:

Corinne Bunn
Yu-Wei Chang
Fatima Chaudhri
Andy Chen
Benjamin Cocanougher
Matej Goricar
Peter Joyce
Ashton Lee
Zhe Ma
Elizabeth Nguyen

Lamie Nguyen
Kathleen Van Niekerk
Andreja Pagon
Priya Patel
Jimmy Pham
Michelle Pitch
Christopher Reed
Danielle Rush
Joshua Sheak
Min Li Tey

This edition of The MSPress Journal features opinions about sexual consent, language certification for medical students, public health efforts towards reducing “drink driving”, and reflections upon the rich experiences of clinical care. Enjoy this addition to medical student expression and look out for our many upcoming publications this year.

Cheers,
