Medicine's Mirror

Jonathan Kopel

1. Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center

The practice of medicine is as much a mirror as an art.

Each word and action projecting outwards, desperate for its embrace.

With a patient's words and mannerisms, the intangible world of thoughts and personality, projects with musical rhythm, waiting to harmonize with another soul.

In a process seeped with mystery, the observant physician receives the rhythm, and shifts their internal metronome, dancing with the patient's tune.

With repetition the harmony escalates, until both souls align,
in an understanding beyond words, where healing can finally begin.
